Fire Rock Casino
Gallup, New Mexico
120' wide x 300' long and
90' wide x 105' long

From ground-breaking to fully operational in just over four months, this 46,000-square-foot Sprung structure serves as the Fire Rock Casino, the first of its kind for the Navajo Nation.

The state-of-the-art facility has an attractive, modern look that incorporates graphics of Native American icons, as well as a panoramic glazing wall with windows that allow for patrons to look out over the mountains from the fine-dining restaurant on-site. The casino also offers more than 1,000 slot machines, bingo, a variety of table games and live entertainment.

Sprung was selected as the preferred building supplier for this project based on experience, speed of construction, engineering capability and attractive leasing options.

Point Casino
Kingston, Washington
100' wide x 290' long

When the Port Gamble S'Klallum Tribe wanted to expand its existing casino and offer the very latest in gaming technology, members chose to go with a Sprung structure in order to accelerate the design and construction of a new facility.

Sprung provided a custom-designed, curved structure and adjacent entertainment pavilion, both of which were erected and operational in just nine months. The 52,000-square-foot Point Casino now houses more than 500 games, as well as an upscale restaurant, two more casual dining choices and an event center that can seat up to 760 people. It also showcases S'Klallum art on special graphic panels around the perimeter of the facility's exterior.

Mill Bay Casino
Manson, Washington
120' wide x 315' long

As the Confederated Tribes of the Colville Reservation began their search for a casino building solution, members quickly realized that by choosing a Sprung structure, their gaming facility would be up and running much faster than it would with most other options.

Sprung designed and delivered a fully insulated, 120' x 315' structure featuring a black interior liner, attractive glazing walls and a clear-span space that accommodates more than 300 slot machines, a variety of table games, a sit-down restaurant and a full-service bar.
